Public Consulting Group (PCG) has provided innovative programmatic support services to dozens of clients administering community-based rate setting initiatives nationwide.

For 30 years, PCG has partnered with states and providers to support cost reporting, rate-setting, and implementing Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) regulations and guidance. We have worked with government agencies and community-based providers across the country to develop the critical financial and oversight functions necessary to ensure reimbursement rates are developed properly, consistently, transparently, and at appropriate reimbursement levels.

We Understand the Unique Structure, Goals and Challenges of Community-Based Programs

Emerging out of the de-institutionalization movement, community-based care can offer a more effective, less expensive alternative to institutional settings. By developing strong partnerships and adapting to the specific needs of the communities they serve, community-based providers are uniquely equipped to provide a patient-centered, wholistic and preventative approach to care. Many community-based providers utilize critical non-medical resources like enrollment, transportation, vocational training, housing, and social supports to resolve environmental factors which can be barriers to population health.

Community-based providers are resourceful and resilient, but they need well-tailored reimbursement policies to remain sustainable. Many agencies have established legacy rates, but sometimes no knowledge of how the rates were established or whether the rates are appropriate given the recent movement to advance community-based service delivery reform efforts. PCG recognizes and understands this challenge and we will work with your agency, association, or provider system to develop rate setting solutions which consider these distinct challenges in order to establish appropriate reimbursement levels.
